THE GREAT SEAL OF THE CONFEDERACY

The news from Washington to the effect that the great seal of the Con federacy has been found and reposes A! Castle robbed Dr. Hobdy of a now in the prosaic receptacle of a hoput out in the eighth, when he gave tel vault in Richmond will set at rest an exhibition of fancy sprinting a. I a theme of fascinating speculation and mystery which has been agitated by the people of the South for many Castle struck out thirteen and gave years. It has been perhaps a period only two bases on balls, which was of not more than twelve months past some class." Rose was touched 'or since a statement was made by the the same number of hits, 9, but gare | aged bodyguard of Jefferson Davis, now a resident of Washington, in the course of a newspaper interview, that the seal would never be found, as he alone knew its hiding place, having buried it in Georgia after receiving it from the hands of the Confederace States' President during the latter's flight to the Far South after the abandonment of Richmond. In this instance the usual experience is realized, apparently, the contusing of one thing for another and the gradual development of an ordinary transaction into what grew into a great mystery. The seal, it appears, was removed from the office of the Confederate Secretary of State, Judah P. Benjamin, by a clerk under him at the time of the evacuation of the Southern capital, and it came into the possession later of Rear-Admiral Seifridge, of the United States navy, who, when a young lieutenant, in 1872, was commissioned by the Government at Washington to purchase a number of Confederate State papers from a Virginia collector of mementos of the lost cause. After having sold the pabers to Lieutenant Selfridge he gave them the seal as a present. It had been in the former's possession ever since, while for a period of more than forty-five years the people of the South regarded it as having been irrevocably lost. The relic, which will grow in historical value with the years and ultimately find its place inthe museum of the Historical Society at Richmond, no doubt, will lose nothing of its mystical charm through the fact of its having been purchasen from its late owner by three Virginians for the sum of $3000. It should be a matter of no small satisfaction to the people of the South that the emblem which they naturally view with a large measure of sentimental attachment is now accounted for and may be gazed at as a visible, tangible object instead of being recalled to their minds as a thing that was fated to be nevermore looked upon by their reverential eyes.-Philadelphia Tele
